To the Dean and Some of his Colleagues,
Molde University College,
6402 Molde, Norway
Fax: +4794760843

Dear to all,

First of all I am too happy to hear from you. Here you can find my deep and important response for your request.

I hope that you are doing fine. I notice that you still are publishing a lot.

>>> There is no surprise!, as an academician, it is my job to give solutions and publishing scientific articles in international academic journals. It is known that I was the top contributor of publishing scientific articles at Molde University in 2014. I also think that I am among the top contributors publishing scientific articles at Molde University in 2015.

More importantly, I have discovered new models and formulas in academic literature. This of course shows my significant contribution to the BRAND of Molde University College.

I'm contacting you regarding the laptop that you borrowed to do your master thesis work. We cannot see that you have returned this computer. Do you have any information to me about the whereabouts for this computer?.

Of course, as you mentioned, it is true that per request of Professor Per B. Solibakke, you gave me a laptop to support my research papers. If you request me whereabouts?.

My direct response is that my advisor (Professor Per B. Solibakke) and me split my master's thesis into five different but integrated articles. Some of the papers are accepted for publication in credible academic journals and the others are still under review. That means, I am still using the laptop to support the publication of these articles.

If your request is to cease the publications of these papers and to return the laptop, please be clear. Hence, I have a reasonable response.

It is known that I have generated a huge amount of money (which enable me to buy what I want to support my research) to the Molde University College by publishing scientific articles in international and credible journals. As a result, based upon the rule and the regulations of the College, you needed to pay me the payment of authorship. Nevertheless, by breaking your own rules and regulations, you did not pay me the payment of authorship. Instead, one way or another, you and some of your colleagues had deliberately warned me to not write and publish scientific articles. This was a big surprise to me by seeing professors like you and your colleagues in the 21 century, in a developed country, especially in Norway who disrespect and discourage a young highly motivated and hard worker black African scholar.

It is all clear that some of your colleagues are extremely angry about my academic performance and publishing scientific articles. Because, I have published the course assignment in credible academic journals.

For Example:

- ✓ My course assignment in Maritime Economics, in title "Econometric Modelling and Forecasting for Norway's Revenue from Export of Ships: An Application to Two-Way Factorial with Interaction Model" is not only published in Journal of International Business and Economics®, but it is also among the BEST papers at International Academy of Business and Economics, 2015, Las Vegas, USA.
- ✓ My course assignment in Air Transport Economics, in title "Spectral Density Estimation of Load Factor of Flight of Domestic and Cross Border Europe of Airlines that are Members of AEA" is published in Journal of Institute for Transport Studies Within the European Economic Integration (ISTIEE).
- ✓ My course assignment in Supply Chain Management, In title "The Bullwhip Effect: Applying Stochastic Models on Beer Distribution Game" is published in International Journal of Applied Logistics.
- ✓ My course assignment in Business Case Studies, in title "Environmentally Friendly Cost Efficient and Effective Sea Transport Outsourcing Strategy: The case of Statoil" is published in Transportation Research Part D: Transport and Environment.

Surprisingly, the course instructors of these four subjects at Molde University College gave me "C" Grade, which contradict with the publication of my assignments in international academic journals. In fact, the publication of these papers (course assignments) justified and confirmed that not only understanding the core concept of the subjects, but also I have showed my contribution of some important ideas to the literature on supply chain management<sup>1</sup>. Furthermore, only the publication of two of my papers made me the top contributor of publishing scientific articles at Molde University College in 2014.

For any rational person, the publication of these papers and the grade given by the course instructors at Molde University College will raise some serious questions about the fairness, rationality and biasedness of the evaluation. Instead of correcting their mistakes, one way or another, the course instructors preferred to warn me to not publish scientific articles.

<sup>1</sup> The publication of my course assignments in credible journals confirmed me the grade that I have gotten by the course instructors at Molde University College were not representative. This was my reason that I did not include these grades in my CV, instead I do include the published articles, which proven my true ability in the subject matter.

When I was at Molde University College, Norway, although I have pushed up the publishing load factor of the college, I was treated in extremely in bad way. Due to this, I got mental damage and health disorder.

I would like to inform you and your colleagues are changing the internationally recognized image of your own country, Norway by disrespecting and discouraging academician, and violating your own rules and regulations.

Currently, I am in the United States of America, where human right is highly respected and exercised. Now, I am recovered from the mental damage that I faced at Molde University College, Norway. What you and your colleagues had committed on a Black African Scholar by violating human academic right and violating of your own rules and regulation will be a good story for well-known Media. I mean, I am working to release the story to the media very soon.

Finally, I would like to inform you that, it is not me, but the law of human right will charge you for what you have done on me.
